you're very kind. yes; that's part of what I meant: the dark eyebrows and white hair, the silent girl and the intense boy; the missed meeting and the eventual connection. in the wake of yesterdays terrible news, I thought again of the way that letter brought together apparently impossible contradictions, oppositions. not resolving, or interpreting, just holding them together. in a way that's not possible until much time has passed. do you remember Ozick's "the laughter of Akiva"? that's what it evoked.

keep safe,
janet
