

8 August, 1989

Dear David,

Two weeks ago I sent you a longer letter but you may receive this one earlier. My friend is going on a Fulbright fellowship to Amherst and she is doing me a favour by sending this little package.

Last Sunday we went to Louisa looking for boxes of "Dybbuk". Not many of them left, I'm afraid,

This is a home made fresh one very very tall!!!

but still there's something in the air. You would be a better judge anyway and we hope that one day we will go there with you and Steve and maybe Sue too.

In Normandy in summer there are dozens of artists selling their work and we found this little picture for you. It's not a masterpiece, of course, but maybe there's something of a shell in it. I hope you will find some spot for it in your office or at home.

In Normandy we had our lunch in a very interesting place, a sort of Jewish restaurant. A sort of because the food is not Jewish but the owner is and he keeps some photographs from the prewar Uizmir on the walls. The place looks shabby on the outside but it's very interesting to visit and to talk to the 78-year old owner who is the only waiter there at the same time. And the food is excellent.

I know that it's even mentioned in some American guidebooks.

Take care

Love to all of you
from M+C+M