1. Met today with Starostin & Kior. Kir reprod your conversator reported your conversation to me &

Starostin. We have agreed that we will do another inspection tour on Tuesday (we did one today; things are close to done in the kitchen and two of the four rooms, but it will certainly take a few more days of work in those rooms and the noise will continue in the neighboring rooms a few days thereafter, but it looks like your suggested arrival schedule will allow for everything to be in place so we can start on the right foot). The Tuesday inspection will provide the final go-ahead or added delay. I am hopeful that by tuesday we'll be able to say come ahead.

2. The Nikolskaya office should be ready for occupancy by the close of business Monday.

<Return> for more, (Q)uit:

3. I have a call in to Anglo Am re: Zipperstein's application. Will advise. I rec'd a copy of his fax to them. My thanks for the background material. It helps in talking to them.

4. Starostin feels it is critically important to make crystal clear a couple of things: a) What happens to the rooms we're NOT using on the third floor? Even when WE move downstairs, there will be one double "lying fallow." Will we let RGGU use it when we're not? b) the equipment they're buying (refrigerators, TVs, etc.) -- are they ours or the university's when all is said and done? He said we'd better get those understandings down in writing somehow.

5. The price quote remains indeterminate. Will advise.

6. Please tell Rebecca that a) I'm VERY impressed with Jeopardy; b) We could use both JTS and blank business envelopes if possible; c) instant oatmeal packets would be appreciated if possible; d) we'll find cookie sheets here.

Now that the decision is made, yesh tikvah. Shabbat Shalom, Yehiel.
