

FIGURING JASPER JOHNS

FRED ORTON

Few contemporary artists have made the problem of meaning for both artist and viewer as interesting and challenging as has Jasper Johns. Figuring Jasper Johns is a carefully and convincingly argued illumination of the ideas and selected works of this enigmatic American painter. Focusing on three of Johns's key paintings, Flag (1954–55), Painted Bronze (1960), and Untitled (1972), Fred Orton adroitly combines formal theoretical analyses and historical reflection. He opens up the painter's canvasses to fresh interpretation, with appropriate emphasis on the power of allegory in Jasper Johns's work.

"Fred Orton writes on Jasper Johns with clarity as well as conviction ... If Orton engages you with the play of words and concepts, he is equally adept at drawing you close into Johns' paintings ... With equal authority, Orton analyzes the critical distinction, as articulated by Johns himself, between the actual and the figured."

—Richard Shiff, Art Forum

"A significant contribution to the large body of literature about one of the more provocative and enigmatic artists of the mid- and late-twentieth century."

—Michael J. Prokopow, Boston Book Review

Fred Orton is Senior Lecturer in Fine Art, University of Leeds.

A BRIDGE OF LONGING

THE LOST ART OF YIDDISH STORYTELLING

DAVID G. ROSKIES

A Bridge of Longing is a compelling history of how Yiddish storytelling became the politics of rescue for successive generations of displaced Jewish artists, embodying their fervent hopes and greatest fears in the languages of tradition. Its protagonists are modern writers who returned to storytelling in the hope of harnessing the folk tradition, and who created copies that are better than the original.

"An ambitious, learned ... study of two centuries of Yiddish literature ... Roskies has produced an often brilliant scholarly volume that will help rescue the 'lost art of Yiddish storytelling' by explaining what it really was."

—Richard Bernstein, New York Times

THE POLITICAL LANDSCAPE

AN ART HISTORY OF NATURE

MARTIN WARKE

Little in the landscape remains untouched by human hands, and every touch, from the simplest ditch to the most intricate monument, reveals a political decision or design. This is how Martin Warnke, one of Germany's leading art historians, looks at landscape in this book, which leads to a new way of seeing nature as we have appropriated, represented, and transformed it over time. Covering nearly a thousand years and most of western Europe, he provides a compelling summary history of modern humanity's ill-fated attempt to master nature.

"Written in a most engaging, highly readable way with a wide-ranging mass of illustrations rich enough to operate as individual visual essays."

—Chris Stephens, Art Book

"Insightful: the fifteenth-century castle towering 'like a protective super-ego' over the people, the Alpine torrent a revolutionary image of freedom. 'Winters, glaciers and ice were ... frequent symbols of the old despotic order.' The pictures are unusual, and the writing is unusually lucid."

—Guardian

Martin Warnke is Professor of Art History at the University of Hamburg. His previous books include The Court Artist.

"[Roskies's] analysis of Sholem Aleichem, Peretz, and Manger is masterly, his study of Singer, inspired. His book is about the most stimulating guide to the Yiddish classics available in the English language."

—Chaim Bermant, Jewish Chronicle

"Fascinating and persuasive ... In this insightful and erudite study [Roskies shows that] Yiddish writers ... were literary craftsmen who rediscovered and then refashioned traditional stories and did it so successfully that today their creations seem like original folk tales ... He makes a strong case."

—Kenneth Turan, Los Angeles Times Book Review
