Dear Prof. Roskies,

I was asked to write a "review" of your book and Peninnah Schram's book for the Association of Jewish Libraries Newsletter. The enclosed was what I had submitted.

Inasmuch as the two books dealt with the same subject, folktales, I asked if they would agree to have me cover the two within one review with both titles on the top. (as per the enclosed). They agreed.

I was just given a copy of the Newsletter and was chagrined to see that they hadn't done what they had agreed to do. The chagrin changed to anger at seeing a classic case of "farbaytn di yoytsers". Comments about Ms. Schram's book are under your title and "farkert".

For myself, I feel that I will be perceived as a disorganized idiot and I must admit, it bothers me! For you and Ms. Schram, I'm troubled that the review that appears over my name will create confusion in the minds of prospective buyers.

In any event, I'm sorry even though I should not be the one to apologize. I've contacted the Association and, hopefully, they will print the proper review in the next issue.

Sincerely,

Meyer Zaremba

P.S. I am the brother of Morris Zaremba, alev hashalom, who worked in the Seminary library for many years. A "grees", also, to Prof. Avram Holtz who was a wonderful friend to my brother and continues to be so to his wife, Ethel.
