

* The influence of John Dewey on J. ed in Am

1979 Harvard PhD

Ronald Kaestle Diss.

1908-1910's special relationship as teacher + friend to young J. educators

72 re. Trustham (Alexander H. as major factor in Am J. ed.

Influences: Kaplan + Friedlander (clan w/ latter at JTS as Bible, Had Ha-am + Maimonides, classes specially arranged by Benderly for his "boys"

& J. ed as supplement (arg) to public schools - an ideal

Deweyan move from curriculum to child as center of educ.

96 Berkson (Isaac B.)

Democracy + the place of the Jewish group within it -

¹¹⁴ ~~Hot~~ Cultural Heb. nationalism of the Haim as basis for theory

Generally, desire to be inspired by Dewey + to appropriate him, but to shy away from or ignore inherent conflicts

Jewish survival as goal + his community theory as means to an end - Kaplan, Hoff, Friedlander, Benderly as more important influences

Articles in J. No. 120 + JIR Quarterly good article

Achenbach: appreciation + critique of Benderly Boys as accommodation to America + total investment in afternoon school for ideological reasons that played into the hands of lay convenience Dinah page William H. Kilpatrick: "Education as growth is not mastery of subject matter" w/ little or no present meaning for the child "but is the development of the student's potential capacity to function actively + effectively in the reconstruction of the social order"

Problem was that amid ~~so~~ so much functionalism (brought on by push for standardization) the envisioning of such an order (in Jewish terms) was never realized

Hertzberg Arthur, "Seventy years of Jew. Ed." Judaism
I 4 (Oct. 52), p. 364 - see notes: diff. from Tarbut school in Europe in that they were supplementary - Hebraism tolerated an ^{assimilation} of teachers - Their national Zion Heb. burden was given when the ~~the~~ parents were looking the other way

Arthur A. Goren, NY Jew & the Quest for Community -
The Kehilla Experiment, 1908-22 (NY: Columbia UP, 1970), p. 125

Rauch, 417: Benderly & co in role of mediators bet. the conflicting purposes of uptown & downtown Jew - diff.
role & much compromise - never had free hand, always under constraints -

Acherman, Walter F., "The Americanization of J. Ed," Judaism xxiv 4 (Fall 75) 416-435

Ronald Kronick, "The Influence of John Dewey on J Ed," Consev. J. xxv 2 (Winter, 76), 44-57

Rauch, 433: ambivalence - feared day school as preparing Jews ~~only~~ for survival only in large ghetto & not giving them the internal freedom to be Jew, yet awareness of the anti-Jewish impact of the public school (Dushkin) - also, possible fear that the "tolerance" of Am. society would not stretch this far
